& Model Builder's Guide

A Short History of Revell

It all began back in the early 1950's when Revell introduced the world's first scale model plastic car kits, forerunners of today's more advanced and highly detailed plastic models.

From these humble beginnings in Venice, California, Revell has grown to occupy a 10½ acre headquarters which employs over 500 people. Revell products are now manufactured in eight countries and sold in more than eighty. In its 30 year history, Revell has produced more than 255,000,000 units.

Revell now manufactures over 200 different model kits, including miniature reproductions in exact detail of just about everything that rolls, flies, or floats.

Though a Revell kit can be purchased in a hobby, chain, or department store for from under $1.00 to $18.00, the master mold for the model costs between $50,000 and $150,000. Every processed kit requires research and development, planning, engineering, manufacturing, packaging, advertising and marketing. Its selection must be exacting.

Just what does it take to manufacture a model kit? The way it happens at Revell goes something like this ... you, the consumer, often write in and suggest a model kit you would like us to make. These suggestions are passed along to our Advanced Development Department, who evaluates the suggestions and makes recommendations to the Revell management team. If the management team approves the project, they forward the project to the Revell engineering staff. An engineer is then assigned to the project and is responsible for designing this model in such a way that it will be economical to manufacture and practical to assemble by you.

From detailed engineering specifications, a hand-built original model must be created. From this original model, plaster and epoxy molds are made. These molds are then used as patterns for the steel tools and dies which are cut on pantograph machines. Finally, the steel dies are hand finished, placed in a mold base, and installed in an injection molding machine. This machine can turn out a kit in twenty seconds that has been in the research, development and engineering stages for over a year.

A Complete How-To-Do-It Guide For Assembling, Painting, And Detailing Any Plastic Model.

Assemble model and apply decals. This technique will provide you with an attractive model of the real thing. However, if you want a more realistic, miniature reproduction of the real thing, please read on.

To start, you'll need these.

Tools: hobby knife; screw driver; tweezers; half-round and round jewelers files; scissors; liquid and tube cement; surfacing putty; Scotch-brand "Magic" tape; "Micro-Set" (for decals); #001, #1, and #3 sable-hair paint brushes; and paint in bottles and/or spray can as outlined in kit instructions.

As parts are needed, they should be cut — not broken — from the molding rack or “sprue” a fraction of an inch above actual part. Cut or shave away excess plastic on raised seams and around edges of parts (round jewelers file can clean away excess from hinge holes, wheel bearings, etc.). Check fit of any moving parts.

Clothes pins can be used to clamp smaller parts while glue dries. “Magic” tape or plain marking tape will hold larger parts together while cement dries completely.

Use the half-round jewelers file to smooth off the body filler flush with the surface of the parts after filler has dried at least overnight. Open any assembly holes.

Apply the thinnest possible bead of tube cement for plastics along the inner corner of all joining edges.

Check the box lid and/or photos of the real item to see where any seams appear. Usually, seams between model parts should be filled in with surfacing putty.

Note About Using Cement:

All plastic cements are in fact solvents which soften the two surfaces to be joined and fuse them into one piece. The process is more like welding than cementing. Since the solvents soften the plastic, an excessive amount will soften a larger area than that required for a suitable bond. When this occurs, the plastic will become rubbery; the chemical balance will be upset and the cemented area will not harden.

Extreme care should be used when applying cement to small parts to avoid softening the plastic or fusing the movable parts. We recommend applying a drop of cement to these areas with the end of a toothpick for better control. If too much cement is accidentally applied, remove as much as possible immediately — before the solvent can penetrate the plastic.

Decals, Chrome & Clear Parts

Cement for plastics will NOT adhere to any PLATED plastic parts. Scrape away plating from joining surfaces or rub it off with a typewriter eraser. Light lenses should be scraped inside of rim and glued on with liquid cement.

Trim clear surrounding each decal tightly as needed, dip in water for a second, place on paper napkin while glue dissolves (few minutes).

When decal slides on paper backing, position on model. Hold decal down with knife tip and pull paper from beneath it. Use damp facial tissue to roll and dab water and air bubbles.

For tight decal fit on irregular surfaces dab on "Micro Set" to soften decal film. Decals are best preserved with overcoat of spray like "Clear" (high-gloss) or "DullCote".

Hold window in place, apply drop of liquid cement at each corner with a toothpick. Clear sections should be glued last as over-sprays will cause "frosting".

Painting and Finishing Aircraft

After wet sanding filed areas with #500 paper, wash with soap & water, rinse, apply coat of grey primer, let dry.

Masking off areas for best separation of color is done with "Magic" tape or paper patterns tightly taped down.

Canopy lines are best accomplished through masking. Cover entire canopy. Cut tape from framework lines, spray, let dry, remove tape.

"Feathered" edges on camouflage designs are done with holes irregularly punched in a piece of paper held a fraction of an inch above model surface and sprayed.

"Blotch" patterns can duplicated by dabbing with a fine-pore sponge (a slot car "closed cell" tire works well).

Detailing Ships

The information which follows is about ships because they generally benefit most from more detailing. The tips shown have many applications which can be used on any category of Revell model. Stretched sprue can be used for airplane guy wires or automotive engine detailing as well as for ship railings. The "striping" described below can be used for cars, planes, ships, etc.

Sails will look even more like cloth if they are "dirtied" a bit. Mix a drop or two of flat brown in a jar lid of thinner and brush on mixture or rub it in with rag.

The filigree on Revell's kits is raised above the rest of the surface. It's easier to paint if you use the side of a #000 brush to color the raised portions.

For the appearance of wood, paint basic brown color, then brush or rag-rub on a thinned down mixture of a drop of tan paint in an ounce of thinner. Flat (no-gloss) is best.

Hobby shops and drafting supply stores often stock "drafting" tape in a wide choice of colors and widths. Tape makes striping ships or cars simple.

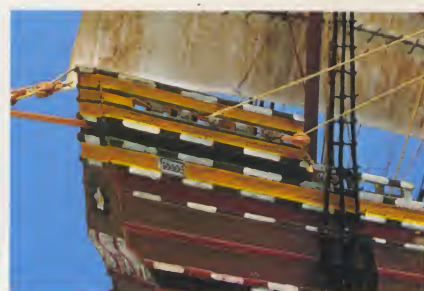

Tweezers are a must for assembling small parts and for tying knots on ship's rigging. When rigging is complete, a drop of water-thinned plain white glue will secure knots.

Hold a section of the scrap molding rack, or "sprue", over a candle flame and rotate slowly. When plastic softens, stretch into thin line for ship rigging, aerals, etc.
